Bo Ekman, CEO Tällberg Foundation.

Rethinking thinking - Can sustainability be achieved?

The talk is based on the assumption that the present political and economical models will fail to deliver a sustainable society.

The philosophical foundations of the current political and economical models and views will be questioned. The models and views used by almost the whole globalized civilization. The question is by nature existential. The concept sustainable development is not grounded in any existing empirically verified theory.

Hence we have to rethink our thinking.